The Laramie Project

The Laramie Project is a 2002 drama film written and directed by Moisés Kaufman, which tells the story of the aftermath of the 1998 murder of Matthew Shepard in Laramie, Wyoming, from the point of view of the crew making researches for the movie. In the peaceful, small Laramie a young gay man was robbed, viciously beaten and left tied to a fence to die. Everybody is shocked by this sudden act of hatred, which takes place in a town where the main attitude is to "live and let live".
